Fighting for fair pay for NHS staff

NHS pay

As members of ambulance staff we help people every day.

From being the reassuring voice at the end of a phone, getting people the help they need, to getting them home after their hospital appointment - we make a real difference every day.

5 days of action for NHS pay

We know it's hard to walk away from patients and their families, but we are now asking you - for once - to put yourself first.

As your union we believe that you deserve fair pay and that the decision to take away the pay rise recommended by the pay review body is just wrong.

And things will only get worse if we do nothing now as there will be no pay rise next year either.

We know that patient care suffers if staff are demoralised and worried about making ends meet.

So, please support the industrial action during the week of 13 October.

Take action - not just for you and your colleagues - but for your patients and for the NHS.

What to do now

- Join the four hour strike: Monday 13 October 2014 from 7-11am
- Take action short of a strike: Tuesday 14 - Friday 17 October
- March for fair pay: Saturday 18 October. Britain needs a payrise

Get involved

Speak to your Rep. for information on how the action is being organised in your workplace. You can also visit the UNISON in WMAS website at www.wmambo.co.uk where information will be shared and updated on a regular basis. They will also be able to advise you about any measures to ensure patient safety during the action.
